following in your lessons: Understand your actions Try to understand what you are doing rather than learning by rote/memory. Under pressure, something may happen, for example a car starts reversing off a driveway as not give you priority, you will wait for that car. If you are looking over your right shoulder because your instructor tells you to, then in the moment you might not make the correct decision. Make sure you understand the you understand how your driving test is going to be scored and tested. You can see what anexaminersmarking sheet looks like here. There are a few areas of the marking sheet youll need to understand that are not active notice an S and D section. A fault in this section will also result in an instant fail on your driving test. We always actively encourage our learners to read through the marking form so they have a better understanding of the	ly shown on the form:If you receive more than 4 minor faults in one of the sections, it will result in a failed examination. You may take your test:Plan your driving lessonsTry to take your driving lessons leading up to your driving test at a similar time to when you are taking your test. For example, if you have an8:10amtest, thenits vital you takesome	lessons between 7-9am. This way, you will understand the traffic and decision-making of other road users during rush hour. Many learners are put off by taking a test around8amin the morning. However, if you are learning with a driveJohnsons instructor they will know the test routes for this time. In most towns/cities, the test routes are reduced du for you. Also, ask for a driving lesson the day before your test to ease any nerves. Make sure you have had a detailed discussion with your driving instructor, highlighting any areas that you are stumbling on. Many learner of your driving test preparation: Only wearshoes that are comfortableand allow you to maintain control of the clutch. The clothing you wear should be comfortable and allow you to move freely. Any t-shirts, blouses or shirt	s should not restrict your movement. Avoid wearing sunglasses. You must remove them during your test. Unfortunately, there are a few people who choose to ignore our advice. Many of the driving instructors on ourdriving school franchisehave reported cases of pupils being rude and wearing dirty clothes. So then, what should you wear? These are the plimsolls Rest! Make sure that you are getting plenty of rest between lessons and before your driving test. One of the most important aspects of driving test preparation is concentration. Without the necessary rest in between	een driving lessons and your test, your brain could be getting exhaustedandthis will leadto an increase in avoidable mistakes. Try to go bed at your normal bedtime. If you go to bed at 11pm every night then your body wont be use to going to bed at 8pm. Trying to go to bed too early may make things worse. You may start to worry you cant get to sleep Sleep Foundation, which suggests changing your bedtime should be done gradually over weeks and not the night before a test. On test day.
