The purpose of this work is to model and verify the data model informal unchanged its full properties and behaviors. We used specification and verification of model-based methodology, which is widely used to check certain behaviors of these protocols. The proposed formal model is adequate and its various property can be checked using the standard form of instruments for monitoring / verification. This formalism is developed by finding inconsistencies in the model given and then the removal of the proposed model. All protocols were successsfully tested for their specific (as specified in Specification Document). The model developed can be generated using any CASE tool in XML, which can subsequently be used by model checker. This work was supervised by Reiko Heckel. 72 pp. Englisch.
