Now the anime officially has a start date. The series tells an alternate time story that follows alongside the main story of Duel Masters Win, depicting a "never-before-seen world" and centering on Win protagonist Win Kirifuda. The latest update on the series has it set to premiere in Japan via the Duel Masters YouTube channel on October 4, 2024. The news comes from the August 2024 issue of Shogakukan's Monthly CoroCoro Comic magazine, which hit Japan on Friday. Duel Masters Lost Key Visual The casting reprises roles from the Duel Masters Win anime, including Shotaro Uzawa in the lead as Win Kirifuda and Watary Hatano voicing Abyssell. Jashin Emperor (Jashin-kun). The Weekly CoroCoro Comic website launched the Duel Master LOST Tsuioku no Suisho manga on February 1, 2024, with the first part having come to an end on March 21. What's this whole Duel Masters thing, anyway? It's the creation of Shigenobu Matsumoto, kicked off back in 1999, and centers around a trading card game. Here's how Amazon Prime describes the first anime series: Duel Masters Synopsis The young duelist Shobu Kirifuda battles his way to stardom, in an attempt to follow in his fathers footsteps and become a Kaijudo Master, aided by his mentor Knight, and his friends Bokita, Seyuki and Mimi he battles against many strong adversaries such as the Reaper duelist Kokupo, leader of the White Soldiers, Hakuho as well as the Master of the Temple.
