ACCA F1-F3 Qualification – course syllabus The course syllabus for the ACCA qualification is quite in depth and covers some of the more advanced elements of accounting. The first three papers that you will need to complete for this qualification include: F1 – Accountant in Business F2 – Management Accounting F3 – Financial Accounting During these three papers you will study the basics of accounting systems and financial operations which are commonly used in a business environment. Ethics are also an important consideration in this industry and you will also be introduced to professional codes of conduct required within an accountancy practice. F1 Accountant in Business This is the very first paper in the series and it will teach you everything you need to know about the association between finance, accounting and business. You will explore how accounting functions in today’s business and why it is so important for the efficient and effective management of an organisation. F2 Management Accounting In the second paper in this qualification, students will learn about the wider business environment and how this has an influence on organisational structure. The latter sections of the unit will discuss the role of accounting and other business functions and how they contribute to the ethical and efficient development of a business. F3 Financial Accounting The third and final paper in this qualification will explore a number of principles and concepts that relate to the process of financial accounting. Students will also learn about double entry accounting and how to prepare financial statements. ACCA F1-F3 Qualification – assessment Within the course you will have to complete three main examinations, F1 through to F3. These are formal exams which you will have to take at an ACCA approved centre and the centres are located throughout the country.
