Released in 2016, the game has become popular in Southeast Asia and has been among the games chosen for the first competition of medal events at 2019 south-east south-east Games in the Philippines. In July 2018, Tencent (who also developed similar games, Valor Arena) on behalf of anti-disomymyosis games he won a case in Shanghai n.1 Court of the intermediate peoples against the CEO of Moonton Watson Xu Zhenhua (as he had previously worked in Tencent as one of Tencent senior employee), for having violated a law concerning the non-competitive agreements together with the plagiarists the legends of the legends of mobile legends, and He received an agreement of $ 2.9 million. Gameplay Mobile Legends: Bang Bang is a online multiplayer game Battle Arena (MOBA) designed for mobile phones. The two opposite teams fight to reach and destroy the base of the enemy while they defend its base for controlling a path, the three "lanes" known as "top", "middle" and "bottom", linking the basics. [4] The weakest figures controlled by the computer, called "minions", generate team bases and follow the three lanes at the base of the opposite team, fighting enemies and turrets. [5] The characters the moving legends initially had 10 heroes at its release in 2016. [6] Later it grew up to 70 by 70 November 2018. [6] and from 2020 December, 103 heroes are on the live server . Moonton regularly collaborates with the countries of Southeast Asia to create new characters from their respective stories or folklore to further increase the charm of the game, [7] introducing characters such as Lapu Lapu (Philippines), [8] Minisithar (based on Kyanisiththa ; Myanmar) [9] [10] Kadita (based on Nyai Roro Kidul; Indonesia), [11] and Badang (Malaysia). [12] In November 2020, Moonton announced Boxer Professional Filipino Manny Pacquiao as an ambassador of the brand for mobile legends: Bang Bang in the Philippines. To commemorate the partnership, Moonton has also launched a character based on Pacquiao in the game known as a Paquito. [47] The theme song for Mobile Legends 515 United 2019 Event was "Bang Bang" sung by Shorelle. [48] In May 2020, Moonton released "Party Legends" on YouTube, Spotify and other streaming services. [49] Due to the Covid-19 pandemic, the 515 campaign for 2020 was limited to events and online competitions [50]. Crazy Legends: Charity Homestand in April 2020, Moonton has collaborated with the rescue of the Philippines children to help children needed due to the 2020 Lunzo enhanced community quarantine by dedicating an online streaming event called Crazy Legends: Cariã Homestand. Venti Streamer participated, including Dogie, Choxytv, Zapnu and Eric Tai. [51] Exclusive contract in 2021, Moonton presumably not allowed MLBB Esports organizations to create teams for legends: Wild Rift and is Criticized by the CEO of the secret team that the move "can not be good by a healthy ecosystem or from a point of view with competitive integrity." [52] [53] [necessary quotation] An unnamed source has therefore clarified that there is actually an excited contract, but it is only optional and Moronton will benefit those who agree on the exclusivity. On the exclusivity, MLBB Esports organizations still have wider split teams. [54] Development After Moonton has fnished developing his first game called Magic Rush: Heroes, published in 2015, proceeded to develop the next company project, a multiplayer online Arena mobile game (MOBA) subsequently entitled Mobile Legends. [55] Mobile legends were released by Moonton with the subtitle "5V5 Moba" on July 14, 2016. [56] The game is distributed by Elex Tech in the United States. [57] According to an app scanned on Google Play from Check Point Research last June 2019, mobile legends: Bang Bang was influenced by CVE-2015-8271 (Streaming Video FFmpeg RTM), a vulnerability that also influenced apps Popular as Facebook, Messenger, and shareholder. [58] [59] At the beginning of 2020, the game was heavily influenced by third-party plugins and scripts that allowed Map-Hacks who prompt Moonton to publicly publish the punishments made through his accounts on social media that They reveal the account ID of the prohibited players. [60] [61] Some accounts have also been hacked due to Exploit to the Device ID that may be due to third-party scripts according to an official Moonton statement. [62] [63] In response, patch 1.4.86 enabled two-factor authentication when accessing a new device. [64] Update Phase MLBB 2.0 On July 18, 2019, Moonton announced MLBB 2.0 through its 2019 Epicon conference. MLBB 2.0 is made up of an engine update to a more recent version of the Unity game engine from version 4 to the 2017 version . [65] [66] Moonton has also promised rapid loading times and boot speeds up to 60%. [67] Other update improvements include reduced lag, improved character modeling and the new imperial sanctuary of the in-game map. [68] The update contributed to increasing the views of the multimedia social media obtained from the game from 56 million in September 2019 to 76 million next month the next one making the game ranked the fourth of all channels from all the game marks in the United States. [69] Next project announced on June 5, 2020, the next project is the next Moonton project for mobile legends, including revocation to the 3D models of previous heroes, skill sets, stories and vocal lines. They also announced an improved targeting method called "intelligent targeting" improving accuracy [70]. Game Spin-off Legends Mobile Legends: Adventure Moonton released a spin-off game entitled Mobile Legends: Adventure, a role strategy game, July 31, 2019. [71] The cause after the initial version of the game, games Of revolt suspect that the game imitated the intellectual property of the League of Legends and contacted Google to remove the game from Google Play. Moonton then removed the game before Google could lower it and eventually relaunched it with the name altered Mobile Legends: Bang Bang on November 9, 2016. [56] In July 2017, the riot games have presented a cause against the Moonton because of the 'copyright infringement, quoting similarities between mobile legends and legends' alloy. [72] Even the riot games have complained that the title of the title of the moving legends sounds confused very similar to the legendary league. [73] The case was fired in the central district court of California in the United States due to the non-conveniens forum. Tencent, Parent Company of Riot, on behalf of the riot games, then presented a new separate cause, targeted directly to Moonton CEO, Watson Xu Zhenhua (as he had previously worked in Tencent as one of the elderly employees of Tencent) in Shanghai n.1 Intermediate Court, for violating a law regarding agreements not which ruled the favor of Tencent in July 2018, assigning Tencent an agreement of $ 2.9 million (RMB19.4 million).
