Bank Cash 365 "ä € American ExpressÄ € Ä® Courtesy Photo Card: 10 Ä" € 000 Hours / DigitalVision / Getty Images Getting a credit card is a fairly simple process asking you to send a question for a card and receive a 'Approval or a denial. The result of an application is mostly based on your credit score, although other factors are relevant to some banks. If you already have a good credit, your score generally affects your limits of Credit on the cards and your approval probability. If you have never applied for the credit before or you have to reconstruct your credit after having some negative credit problems, get the approval that you need to be a little challenging. Before accumulating a number of credit investigations - which slightly reduce your credit score Ä € ä,~ "by accidentally requesting cards, take the time to learn which broadcasters with credit card have More likely to approve your application. Start by checking these suggestions to get a credit card and use it wisely. The main factor used in determining if an applicant is approved for a credit card is the person's credit score. Before applying, you can ask for a free copy of your credit report and your score from each of the three major credit reporting agencies: Experian, Equifax and Coney. According to Fair Credit Reporting Act, you are entitled to a free copy of your report from each agency every 12 months. However, you can also get an estimate of your score at any time from other free or low-cost services, such as the Karma credit. Photo of courtesy: 10 Ä" € 000 hours / DigitalVision / Getty Images A credit score of less than 580 is considered poor, 580-669 is considered right, 670-739 is classified as voucher, from 740 to 799 hits the Very good level and 800 to 850 is exceptional. At the end of the spectrum, if your score is poor, it doesn't mean you have not qualified for a credit card. However, the cards that qualify can have high annual taxes or high interest rates. Despite Deficiencies, these cards can be used to establish and build your credit when you don't have other best options available. Beyond your credit score, the main thing is a credit card company that takes care of your ability to make monthly payments. They will take your age and income into consideration when determining this. If you are younger than 21 years old, you need to be able to prove that you have a constant income and that you are able to afford monthly payments on paper. If you are older than 21 years old, you must meet certain requirements, but you may have already been a little ' History of payments for credit card companies to be reviewed before making a decision on the release of credit to you. One of the applications for credit card application will require information about your annual or monthly income. Most of the time, credit card companies have won the fact that this information verifies, but it is wise to be honest for your income, not just for the sake of the creditor, but for yours. If you are already struggling to make you meet, get a new credit card could ask you to spend money that you can't afford to repay, and it's never a good idea. You can always talk to a financial advisor for further information before the application. Higher is your credit score, the best is your possibility to be approved for credit. High scores allow you to be more selective about your credit card choice. If your credit is in good range or higher, make sure you pay close attention to detail and choose a card that does not have a high annual cost (or any) and that has a competitive APR (annual percentage rate). For reference, today a good APR is generally less than 17.57%, according to the Federal Reserve, but credit card rates tend to continually increase over time. Photo of courtesy: Boy. anupong / moment / getty images some credit card companies also offer prizes, such as cash back on purchases or rewards towards purchases Ä € ä,~ "Amazon Gift Cards, for example - so this is something to consider. Be aware of the fact that some credit card companies charge an annual fee, but many banks do not do it. This is why it is incredibly important to read the fine print before filling out an application for A credit card. If the desired card is supplied with a high annual fee, it should offer some truly exceptional advantages, such as free hotel updates or the highest percentages of cash back. Credit cards may have several APRS for different TYPES OF PURCHASES. If you plan to use your card to make cash advances, for example, you want to check to make sure the card you are requesting to have an AP R reasonable for cash progress. APRs for these types of special transactions can be much higher than 17.57%, even on good cards. Most credit card applications are processed online, although you have received a credit card application in the mail that can be physically filled out and return. Before starting the application, you want to make sure you have all the information at your fingertips that you are likely you need. Most credit card companies will require rather simple information. Be ready with your name, address, date of birth, Nubile Name, Social Security Number, Employment Information and your monthly or annual income. Photo of courtesy: Eva Katalin / E + / Getty Images If you are applying online, fill out all the mandatory fields and send the information. In most cases, the credit decision will be notified immediately. If it was approved, your card will usually arrive between one or two weeks. If you refused, you will receive a letter in the mail that explains the reasons for the negative decision. The letter may also include your credit score on the record at the Bureau office used to recover your score. In some cases, you may receive a message that the bank needs more information. This is more common with candidates who require credit for the first time. If it happens, follow the instructions for completing the application process. For example, the company can request the proof of or of the identity test or both. If you have sent an application by mail, you can expect to receive your card in about four or six weeks if it has been approved. If you are denied, the letter with the explanation generally requires only a couple of weeks to arrive. It is very important to wear your credit card once you receive it. Too often, credit card users fall into poor spending models that cause rapid assembly of their debt. Credit cards overwhelming can lead to hanging in a cycle to do minimum payments only while the IL Ä € ä,~ "and the interest paid Ä € ä,~ "continues to grow. Photo of courtesy: Predrag Vuckovic / E + / Getty Images Remember that even a Ä € ä,~ "A "good" APR is pretty high generally more than 17%, so it's good money management to pay the full balance Every month or maintain a small balance on paper. The interest can accumulate quickly when you don't pay your balance, and when your card approaches its credit limit, this negatively affects your credit rating. The missed payments and the payments. Delinquent accounts also have excessive effect of your credit score, putting you in danger of not being approved for loans, mortgages and other types of credit that may be needed. Need.
