

Continue

Despise and hate are both strong negative emotions, but they differ in intensity and depth. Hate is a feeling of intense dislike or aversion towards someone or something, often accompanied by anger and a desire for harm or destruction. Despise, on the other hand, conveys a sense of contempt or disgust towards someone or something, often rooted in a feeling of superiority or moral judgment. While hate is more visceral and immediate, despise is more cold and calculated. Both emotions can be destructive and toxic, but hate tends to be more explosive and volatile, while despise is more simmering and enduring. Despise and hate are both strong emotions that involve a deep dislike or aversion towards someone or something. However, there is a subtle difference in their meanings. Despise typically conveys a feeling of contempt or disgust towards someone or something, while hate is a more intense and passionate feeling of hostility or animosity. Intensity One key difference between despise and hate is the level of intensity of the emotions involved. Hate is generally considered to be a more intense emotion than despise. When someone hates something or someone, they feel a strong and deep-seated aversion towards it. On the other hand, despise may be a milder form of dislike, often accompanied by a sense of superiority or disdain. Expression Another difference between despise and hate lies in how these emotions are expressed. Hate is often expressed through actions or words that are meant to harm or hurt the object of hatred. It can lead to aggressive behavior or even violence. Despise, on the other hand, may be expressed through more subtle means, such as ignoring or avoiding the person or thing that is despised. Duration Despise and hate also differ in terms of their duration. Hate is usually a more enduring emotion that can last for a long time, even years or a lifetime. It can be difficult to overcome or let go of hatred. Despise, on the other hand, may be a more temporary feeling that can fade over time, especially if the person or thing being despised is no longer present or relevant. Causes The causes of despise and hate can also vary. Hate is often fueled by strong emotions such as anger, fear, or jealousy. It can be triggered by a specific event or behavior that is perceived as harmful or threatening. Despise, on the other hand, may be more rooted in feelings of superiority or contempt towards someone or something that is considered inferior or unworthy. Impact The impact of despise and hate on individuals and relationships can be significant. Hate can lead to destructive behavior and damage relationships irreparably. It can also have negative effects on one's mental and emotional well-being. Despise, while less intense, can still create tension and conflict in relationships and contribute to a negative atmosphere. Conclusion In conclusion, despise and hate are both powerful emotions that involve a deep dislike or aversion towards someone or something. While despise may be a milder form of dislike, often accompanied by a sense of superiority or disdain, hate is a more intense and passionate feeling of hostility or animosity. Understanding the differences between these two emotions can help individuals navigate their own feelings and relationships more effectively. Comparisons may contain inaccurate information about people, places, or facts. Please report any issues. By Tayyaba Rehman & Urooj Arif Updated on April 1, 2024 Hate signifies strong aversion or intense dislike; despise involves a sense of contempt or scorn towards something deemed worthless or inferior. Hate and despise are both negative emotions that reflect a person's feelings towards something or someone. While hate is characterized by an intense dislike or aversion, despise takes this a step further by incorporating a sense of scorn or contempt. Both emotions are strong but differ in their intensity and the reasons behind them. Hate is a powerful emotion that can stem from various causes such as fear, prejudice, or past experiences. It is often directed towards things, concepts, or people that one finds profoundly objectionable or harmful. On the other hand, despise implies a deeper level of disdain, often reserved for things or people considered to be morally reprehensible or beneath consideration. While hate can sometimes be passive or born out of ignorance, despising someone or something usually requires a more deliberate judgment. To despise implies an evaluation of worthlessness or inferiority, suggesting that the despised object or person does not deserve any respect or attention. Hate, however, might not always involve a judgment of inferiority. Hate can sometimes be transformed or mitigated through understanding or compassion, as it might stem from misunderstanding or lack of knowledge. Despise, however, is often rooted in a more permanent perception of the others unworthiness, making it a more steadfast and challenging emotion to reconcile. In social contexts, expressing hate might still be considered within the realm of strong dislike, whereas to express despise is to make a clear statement of considering someone or something as utterly worthless. This distinction highlights the nuanced levels of negativity that despise conveys over hate. Intense dislike or aversion Fear, prejudice, experiences Moral judgment, worthlessness A passionate rejection or opposition. Her hate for the new policy was evident in her protests. To look down upon something as worthless. She despises laziness, always encouraging others to be proactive. A disdainful feeling towards concepts or ideologies. There's a growing hate for corruption among the youth. To reject something with disdain. They despise the idea of cheating to succeed. Intense aversion to someone or something. She developed a hate for injustice after witnessing inequality. Regard with contempt or scorn. He despises dishonesty in any form, considering it beneath him. A feeling of animosity and hostility. His hate for rival team fans often led to confrontations. A scornful rejection. He despises corruption, dedicating his career to fighting it. A deep dislike or antipathy. He has a profound hate for broccoli, refusing to even try it. Feelings of superiority over something deemed inferior. She despises reality TV shows, believing them to be of no intellectual value. To feel strong dislike for or hostility toward Rivals who hate each other. Feel contempt or a deep repugnance for He despised himself for being selfish. To feel dislike or distaste for To regard with contempt or scorn Despised all cowards and flatterers. To be disinclined (to do something) out of politeness or a need to apologize Hate to interrupt, but can I ask you a quick question? To dislike intensely; loathe Despised the frigid weather in January. To regard with contempt or scorn. James still despises his brother for the time he pushed him out of a tree during their childhood. Intense animosity or dislike; hatred. One of my pet hates is traffic wardens. To look down upon with disfavor or contempt; to contemn; to scorn; to disdain; to have a low opinion or contemptuous dislike of. Fools despise wisdom and instruction. Men naturally despise those who court them, but respect those who do not give way to them. He gave me a look filled with pure hate. Look down on with disdain; He despises the people he has to work for The professor scorns the students who don't catch on immediately (Internet slang) Negative feedback, abusive behaviour. There was a lot of hate in the comments on my vlog about Justin Bieber from his fans. (transitive) To dislike intensely or greatly. (intransitive) To experience hatred. Do not fear; he who fears hates; he who hates kills. attributed to Gandhi To have a great aversion to, with a strong desire that evil should befall the person toward whom the feeling is directed; to dislike intensely; to detest; as, to hate one's enemies; to hate hypocrisy. Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer. To be very unwilling; followed by an infinitive, or a substantive clause with that; as, to hate to get into debt; to hate that anything should be wasted. I hate that he should linger here. To love less, relatively. Strong aversion coupled with desire that evil should befall the person toward whom the feeling is directed; as exercised toward things, intense dislike; hatred; detestation. - opposed to love. Hate in a wink the false love turns to hate. The emotion of hate; a feeling of dislike so strong that it demands action. To dislike intensely; feel antipathy or aversion towards. Hate can sometimes be transformed or mitigated through understanding, compassion, or changing perspectives. Despising involves a deeper level of contempt or scorn, often reserved for things or individuals considered morally reprehensible or inferior. Hate signifies an intense dislike or strong aversion towards something or someone, often rooted in fear, prejudice, or negative experiences. People despise certain things due to moral judgments, a sense of superiority, or because they deem them utterly worthless or contemptible. Yes, despising is often considered stronger than hating because it involves a sense of scorn or contempt beyond mere dislike. While primarily negative, these emotions can sometimes drive positive actions, like combating injustice or corruption. Societies typically view both emotions negatively, though despise is often seen as more socially unacceptable due to its contemptuous aspect. Yes, hate can evolve into despise if it incorporates elements of moral judgment and perceived worthlessness. These emotions can influence behavior by motivating actions to avoid, confront, or eliminate the object of hate or contempt. While normal in moderation, excessive hate or despise can be harmful to one's mental and emotional well-being. Both emotions can negatively affect relationships, with despise potentially causing more profound damage due to its contemptuous nature. While these emotions can motivate action, they don't necessarily require it; they can also exist as passive feelings. Yes, it's possible to both hate and despise the same thing, with despise adding a layer of contempt to the intense dislike. In some contexts, these emotions might be considered justifiable reactions to moral wrongs or injustices. Education and exposure to different perspectives can help mitigate feelings of hate and sometimes even dispel despise. Rank vs. Tier Algorithm vs. Method Tayyaba Rehman is a distinguished writer, currently serving as a primary contributor to askdifference.com. As a researcher in semantics and etymology, Tayyaba's passion for the complexity of languages and their distinctions has found a perfect home on the platform. Tayyaba delves into the intricacies of language, distinguishing between commonly confused words and phrases, thereby providing clarity for readers worldwide. Urooj is a skilled content writer at Ask Difference, known for her exceptional ability to simplify complex topics into engaging and informative content. With a passion for research and a flair for clear, concise writing, she consistently delivers articles that resonate with our diverse audience. Despise and hate are strong verbs that express negative emotions, but they differ significantly in their depth and focus of feeling. Understanding the nuances between these terms can enhance your ability to express emotions and reactions precisely, especially in contexts requiring detailed descriptions of personal feelings or societal attitudes. This lesson will define each term and provide examples to clarify their correct usage. Despise means to regard with contempt or scorn. It involves a deep sense of disdain or disapproval, often reserved for things or people one considers inferior, morally reprehensible, or unworthy of respect. Its their successful economy that is so despised by the group, as they believe it contributes to unequal wealth distribution. She despised him for his deceitful behavior, viewing it as below her ethical standards. The artist was despised by critics in his time but is now celebrated for his innovative techniques. Hate means to feel intense dislike or hostility towards someone or something. It can stem from various reasons, including personal grievances, conflicting values, or negative experiences. It seems people either love or hate mayonnaise on sandwiches due to its distinct flavor and texture. He grew to hate the daily commute, which took hours away from his family time. The novel explores themes of love and hate, illustrating how closely these emotions are intertwined. While both despise and hate express negative feelings, despise specifically involves contempt and a sense of superiority, often used in contexts where someone or something is looked down upon as inferior. In contrast, hate denotes a broader and often more passionate dislike, which can be based on more personal or emotional reasons. Accurately distinguishing between these feelings can help in precisely communicating emotions in writing and speech. Reddit and its partners use cookies and similar technologies to provide you with a better experience. By accepting all cookies, you agree to our use of cookies to enhance site navigation, analyze site usage, assist in our marketing efforts, and our ability to respond to your requests. Information on how to best optimize your experience. You may wish to manage your cookie settings. You can manage consent at any time. You can also view our Privacy Policy. Paraphrasing is a natural part of the writing process as it helps you clarify your thinking and suit your words to your audience. Using a Rephrase helps structure and streamline this work, and our paraphrase tool offers 20 modes, many of them free, for accomplishing just this. The 20 modes we offer are diverse, including a summarize tool, a free grammar checker, a mode to simplify text, and a sentence shortener. There are sentence rephrasers and paraphrase rephrase tools, and we pride ourselves on having both, since our reword generator accounts for context at both the sentence and paragraph levels. When you google paraphrase you will get a variety of results, from a free Rephrase, to an article spinner, to a general phrase tool, and it can be hard to determine which of these rephrase tools will best help you complete your work. If you simply need to get a word rephrase, that is, reword only small elements within the sentence, many tools will suffice, but there is the risk that you end up with a tool that does not consider context and produces very awkward and ungrammatical sentences. Rephrasing is very much an art, and we've built our paraphrase tool to produce the most correct results in 20 modes in over 100 languages, making it the best paraphrasing tool at an exceptionally low cost. So whether you need to paraphrase deutsch, paraphrase greek, or paraphrase bahasa melayu, the next time you think, I need something to paraphrase this for me, you'll know where to turn. From keywords to paragraphs Generating paragraphs with unique ideas can be challenging, and too often writers get stuck at this stage of the writing process. With our paragraph tool, you can enter keywords and let our AI generate paragraphs for you, so that you can have something to work with, refine the output, and become more engaged in your writing. A paragraph generator creates links between your ideas, such that the output is sensible, unique, and stimulating, very close to what you would expect a thoughtful human paragraph writer to produce. Paragraph makers are nice, but what about a short story generator? Because our AI is generalized, it serves a story generator, an essay generator, a poem generator, and much more. To generate compelling stories, you should provide the story generator with useful keywords from which it can develop plot elements, including characters, setting details, and any situational information. To generate reasonably good essays, you should likewise provide the essay maker with details around argumentative positions and any other pertinent ideas. If you more specifically want an introduction paragraph generator or conclusion paragraph generator, you can provide starter text and keywords that will best enable our essay creator to produce them. You may well ask, is this essay generator free? Everything on this site is free within a 3-day trial, so you can test and develop confidence in our products. You may also be wondering where this is an essay automatic writer or if it will take a while to get results. All results appear within a matter of seconds, so you can move through your work as quickly as possible. You may have professional needs for creating paragraphs as well, such as those needed for cover letter. Most of the time a cover letter template includes information that is not relevant to you; by using your own keywords, we can produce cover letter examples that are relevant to your use case and often require very little editing. By using this service, you can also learn how to write a cover letter and achieve the cover letter format you need. Plagiarism checker free Like everything else on our site, you can check plagiarism free within a trial, which is a great opportunity for those who want to check a paper for plagiarism without committing to paying before they see results. This free plagiarism checker is great for students and clearly indicates how to check for plagiarism by highlighting areas of similarity between the two texts. Just to be sure you are not accidentally plagiarizing, be sure to check all of your paraphrases as well. despise What is the difference between "despise" and "hate"? When you "hate" someone, you dislike the person intensely. Here are a few examples. I hate all politicians. There was a time when Mary hated her Principal. When she was young, Billy hated her sister. "Despise" is a stronger word than "hate". When you say that you despise someone, it implies that you "hate" that person, but it also carries with it the sense that you have contempt for him/her. In other words, when you hate someone, you dislike the individual intensely, but when you "despise" him, you not only dislike him, but you also look down on him. So, when you despise someone, you consider him being beneath you; you may think that the individual is worthless. The word "hate" does not carry with it this negative connotation. You can hate someone who is superior to you. Here are a few examples. Nandita despises her new boss. I am told that Tara despises the company I work for. COURTESY : The Hindu (The National News-Paper) - IndiaNext Question|Longest-Word|Vocabulary [English Teacher [Etymology|From despise to HOME PAGE|Thank you! Rest assured your feedback will not be shown to other users. Hate vs. Despise Hate noun An object of hatred. Hate noun (Internet slang) Negative feedback, abusive behaviour. Hate verb (transitive) To dislike intensely or greatly. Hate verb (intransitive) To experience hatred. Hate verb To have a great aversion to, with a strong desire that evil should befall the person toward whom the feeling is directed; to dislike intensely; to detest; as, to hate one's enemies; to hate hypocrisy. Hate verb To be very unwilling; followed by an infinitive, or a substantive clause with that; as, to hate to get into debt; to hate that anything should be wasted. Hate verb To love less, relatively. Hate noun Strong aversion coupled with desire that evil should befall the person toward whom the feeling is directed; as exercised toward things, intense dislike; hatred; detestation. - opposed to love. Hate noun the emotion of hate; a feeling of dislike so strong that it demands action Hate verb dislike intensely; feel antipathy or aversion towards; Despise verb To regard with contempt or scorn. Despise verb To disregard or ignore. Despise verb To look down upon with disfavor or contempt; to contemn; to scorn; to disdain; to have a low opinion or contemptuous dislike of. Despise verb look down on with disdain; Despise verb feel contempt or a deep repugnance for More relevant Comparisons Paraphrasing is a natural part of the writing process as it helps you clarify your thinking and suit your words to your audience. Using a Rephrase helps structure and streamline this work, and our paraphrase tool offers 20 modes, many of them free, for accomplishing just this. The 20 modes we offer are diverse, including a summarize tool, a free grammar checker, a mode to simplify text, and a sentence shortener. There are sentence rephrasers and paraphrase rephrase tools, and we pride ourselves on having both, since our reword generator accounts for context at both the sentence and paragraph levels. When you google paraphrase you will get a variety of results, from a free Rephrase, to an article spinner, to a general phrase tool, and it can be hard to determine which of these rephrase tools will best help you complete your work. If you simply need to get a word rephrase, that is, reword only small elements within the sentence, many tools will suffice, but there is the risk that you end up with a tool that does not consider context and produces very awkward and ungrammatical sentences. Rephrasing is very much an art, and we've built our paraphrase tool to produce the most correct results in 20 modes in over 100 languages, making it the best paraphrasing tool at an exceptionally low cost. So whether you need to paraphrase deutsch, paraphrase greek, or paraphrase bahasa melayu, the next time you think, I need something to paraphrase this for me, you'll know where to turn. From keywords to paragraphs Generating paragraphs with unique ideas can be challenging, and too often writers get stuck at this stage of the writing process. With our paragraph tool, you can enter keywords and let our AI generate paragraphs for you, so that you can have something to work with, refine the output, and become more engaged in your writing. A paragraph generator creates links between your ideas, such that the output is sensible, unique, and stimulating, very close to what you would expect a thoughtful human paragraph writer to produce. Paragraph makers are nice, but what about a short story generator? Because our AI is generalized, it serves a story generator, an essay generator, a poem generator, and much more. To generate compelling stories, you should provide the story generator with useful keywords from which it can develop plot elements, including characters, setting details, and any situational information. To generate reasonably good essays, you should likewise provide the essay maker with details around argumentative positions and any other pertinent ideas. If you more specifically want an introduction paragraph generator or conclusion paragraph generator, you can provide starter text and keywords that will best enable our essay creator to produce them. You may well ask, is this essay generator free? Everything on this site is free within a 3-day trial, so you can test and develop confidence in our products. You may also be wondering where this is an essay automatic writer or if it will take a while to get results. All results appear within a matter of seconds, so you can move through your work as quickly as possible. You may have professional needs for creating paragraphs as well, such as those needed for cover letter. Most of the time a cover letter template includes information that is not relevant to you; by using your own keywords, we can produce cover letter examples that are relevant to your use case and often require very little editing. By using this service, you can also learn how to write a cover letter and achieve the cover letter format you need. Plagiarism checker free Like everything else on our site, you can check plagiarism free within a trial, which is a great opportunity for those who want to check a paper for plagiarism without committing to paying before they see results. This free plagiarism checker is great for students and clearly indicates how to check for plagiarism by highlighting areas of similarity between the two texts. Just to be sure you are not accidentally plagiarizing, be sure to check all of your paraphrases as well. Definition: (v. t.) To look down upon with disfavor or contempt; to contemn; to scorn; to disdain; to have a low opinion or contemptuous dislike of. Example Sentences: (1) Indeed, it is democracy itself that the markets seem to despise. (2) We were immediately sure he despised the movie more than any of the other Hollywood McCarthy adaptations and there had been a few stinkers. (3) Disowned by family and despised by public opinion, she is now in prison. (4) The militant group, which despises foreign intervention, has expelled numerous international and local aid groups from the territory it controls. (5) First, medicine was despised as a mechanical art or suspected of paganism because of its literary sources. (6) How would you describe a person with an adoring sister and admiring father creating a child despised by father and siblings? (7) In the wake of plunging costs in global market, prices on the forecourt have fallen much faster than household heating bills, which may be why petrol and oil companies are less despised than home energy suppliers also being named by 26%. (8) He has been derided in these pages, but that derision is surpassed by the venomous hatred of the Daily Mail , which loathes the Cameron government in any case and particularly despised Mitchell in his previous job. (9) "I've always despised it to a certain degree but after this last few years and all this nonsense with the films, I believe it to be a completely poisonous place that isn't really going anywhere. (10) Though he despised race-baiting, Noir wrote, covert racism is a real thing and is very dangerous. (11) So far, concerns about reproductions creeping on to the collectibles market seem greater than any worries about the reintroduction of objects that resurrect old, despised stereotypes. (12) It's a melancholy fate for any writer to become an eponym for all that he despised, but that is what happened to George Orwell, whose memory is routinely abused in unthinking uses of the adjective "Orwellian". (13) What an irony that our own MPs and peers, who complain so bitterly about the draining of British sovereignty to Brussels, were not trusted to discuss this issue while the despised European parliament has, over the past year, freely, intelligently, intricately and repeatedly addressed it. (14) The group despised the liberal socialism of the dominant Labour Zionists and its goal was an "Iron Wall" to defend Jews against what they deemed would be an inevitable backlash by Arabs. (15) They were never aggressive, they were never forcing it down your throat but you were left with no illusions looking at their social media that they were a) Chelsea fans and b) Ukp supporters. He said he despised racism and described the actions on the film as appalling, adding that it in no way represented the views of most people at his former school. (16) Vronsky, who had despised Karenin because he wouldn't fight a duel, is now humiliated and dishonoured; Karenin, flooded with forgiveness for everyone, wins back Anna's respect. (17) He promised to take us "to the heart of Europe", but left behind a country more Europhobic than ever and more despised in a Europe that he berated to appease Rupert Murdoch. (18) They despised Bond's characters, his "slavishly literal bawdery", the lack of artistry in his writing. (19) Malone, who was made a billionaire several times over by the AT&T deal, despised being answerable to the parent company's board and wanted out. (20) Johnson was despised on the right and left by the time he was driven from office in 1968. Definition: (n.) To have a great aversion to, with a strong desire that evil should befall the person toward whom the feeling is directed; to dislike intensely; to detest; as, to hate one's enemies; to hate hypocrisy. (n.) To be very unwilling; followed by an infinitive, or a substantive clause with that; as, to hate to get into debt; to hate that anything should be wasted. (n.) To love less, relatively. (v.) Strong aversion coupled with desire that evil should befall the person toward whom the feeling is directed; as exercised toward things, intense dislike; hatred; detestation. - opposed to love. Example Sentences: (1) She read geography at Oxford, where Benazir Bhutto (a future prime minister of Pakistan, assassinated in 2007) introduced May to her future husband, Philip May: "I hate to say this, but it was at an Oxford University Conservative Association disco this is wild stuff. (2) He had links to networks including the Hammerskin Nation and was involved in an underground music scene often referred to as "white power music" or "hate rock". (3) The education secretary's wife, Sarah Vine, a columnist, said her son William, nine, and daughter Beatrice, 11, now realise how much their father is hated for his position in government because other children tell them in the playground. (4) I went to a reasonably good school, though I think I hated the headmaster just as much as he hated me. (5) Free speech has protected hate speech, and opponents of censorship have consistently defended the rights of unscrupulous populists and incendiaries. (6) And of course, as the articles are shared far and wide across the apparently much-hated web, they become gospel to those who read them and unfortunately become quasi-religious texts to musicians of all stripes who blame the internet for everything that is wrong with their careers. (7) The US started down this course the Sony hack last year, and in this case, transparency might be the best deterrent in the future which, by the way, is something both Snowden and the Snowden-hating national security blog Lawfare argued on Monday. (8) One tip was that he should not mention he was flying to Germany as "obviously" the environmentalists "hate short-haul flights". (9) We hate the police, hate the government, got no opportunities ... Manchester was like a bloodbath. (10) I think that those who go there, to Isis, they hate Russia for the conditions they have to endure to live, Nazarovs brother says. (11) "And of course it's the kind of thing that leftwing pressure groups hate. (12) The genius of a democracy governed by the rule of law, our democracy, is that it both empowers the majority through the ballot box, and constrains the majority, its government, so that it is bound by law. Turnbull added: Why does Daesh [another term for Islamic State] hate us? (13) The worst purveyors of hate, they're emboldened by this election and they're out in force. (14) All of which would be perfectly normal (after all, if there's anything valencianos love more than blowing off their fingers, it's complaining about their team) but for one thing: it was only just after half past nine and there was still an hour to go against hated rivals Real Madrid. (15) Corbyn's new politics is neither hateful nor pure: its complicated | John Harris Read more Their dilemma is plain: if they make a stand against what is happening, they stand accused of disloyalty by Corbyn's supporters; but if they go along with it, they are complicit in Labours probable disintegration when voters realise the party has been taken over by people they can never vote for. (16) Of course they have so they must be doing it because they hate you! (17) Through small and large acts of deprivation and destruction we follow the process: the removal of hope, of dignity, of luxury, of necessity, of self, the reduction of aman to a hoarder of grey slabs of bread and the scrapings of a soup bowl(wonderfully told all this, with a novelist's gift for detail and sometimes very nearly comic surprise), to the confinement of a narrow bed in which there is "not even any room to be afraid" with a stranger who doesn't speak your language, to the cruel illogicality of hating a fellow victim of oppression more than you hate the oppressor himself one torment following another, and even the bleak comfort of thinking you might have touched rock bottom denied you as, when the most immediate cause of apatricular stress comes to an end, "you are grievously amazed to see that another one lies behind; and in reality a whole series of others". (18) Listen to Stoopid Symbol Of Woman Hate or Can't Stand Up For 40-Inch Busts (both songs were inspired by a hatred of sexist advertising) and you can hear Amon Daul and Hawkwind scaring the living shit out of Devo and Clock DVA. (19) At first Shevchenko hated the idea of protesting topless. (20) It was his story, and lately I have come to hate stories. Thank you! Rest assured your feedback will not be shown to other users. Oncheon-ro 45, Yuseong Prugio City unit. 208. Yuseong-gu, Daejeon Terms of Service Privacy Policy Refund Policy ver:3.0.283 | RedKiwi 2025

Hate vs despise difference. Hate vs despise definition. What is worse hate or despise. Despise vs hate vs loathe. Is hate stronger than despise. Despise vs hate meaning. Vs hate.