Singing has always played an important part in Christian worship. Jesus himself sang a hymn with the disciples at the Last Supper (Matthew 26:30). After Jesus death and resurrection, the early Christian church continued singing psalms of praise when they gathered together to worship. Fifteen-hundred years later Protestant reformers reestablished the importance of congregational singing which had been stifled by church leaders. Each new generation has followed the best way to sing praise to God, with few exceptions they have all agreed singing is a necessary part of worship. Jesus himself sang hymns with the disciples at the Last Supper. Their belief was not based simply on tradition but on biblical truth. The Old Testament especially instructs us to sing praise to God. According to Christian author and worship leader, Bob Kauflin (2008), the Bible contains over four hundred references to singing and fifty direct commands to sing.It would seem that something addressed so often and emphasized so strongly is important to God. But why is singingparticularly in worshipso essential? Though there are undoubtedly more, here are four biblical reasons that Christians sing in worship.A proper definition of worship will help us to see how worship and truth correlate. Vines Expository Dictionary (1996) says it well: The worship of God is not confined to praise, broadly it may be regarded as the direct acknowledgment to God, of His nature, attributes, ways, and claims, whether by the outgoing of the heart in praise and thanksgiving or by deeds done to such acknowledgment. John 4:24 reminds us, God is a Spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth.A major aspect of worship is simply recognizing truth about God. The psalms are full of these truths.In Psalm 18:2, God is praised as a Savior and Deliverer: The Lord is my rock, and my fortress, and my deliverer; my God, my strength, in whom I will trust; my buckler, and the horn of my salvation, and my high tower.It is not enough to know things about God. We must declare them to others!Later on in the same psalm, we recognize His integrity and trustworthiness: As for God, his way is perfect: the word of the Lord is tried: he is a buckler to all those that trust in him (Psalm 18:10). We recognize his power as creator and ruler of all things: By the word of the Lord were the heavens made; and all the host of them by the breath of his mouth (Psalm 33:6).The psalmist tells us all these wonderful truths about God and urges us, Sing praises to the Lord, which dwelleth in Zion: declare among the people his doings (Psalm 9:11). It is not enough to know all these things about God, but we must declare them to others!Before man was ever created God made angelic beings to praise Him night and day. Man was also created to love and glorify God in every area of his life, including musical expression.One clear example of singing that pleased God took place at Solomons dedication of the temple. It came even to pass, as the trumpeters and singers were as one, to make one sound to be heard in praising and thanking the Lord. . . . then the house was filled with a cloud, even the house of the Lord; So that the priests could not stand to minister by reason of the cloud, for the glory of the Lord had filled the house of God (2 Chronicles 5:14).This is a beautiful example of what can happen when we worship God through our singing. God created all things to glorify Him. Music is just one of those things. Though we live in a sin-cursed world where music is often used to glorify sin, wethrough Christian still use our music for Gods original intent. Psalm 149:1 says, Praise ye the Lord. Sing unto the Lord a new song, and his praise in the congregation of saints. We are to praise God as a group, not just as individuals. Though we like to think we are self-sufficient, God never intended for us to live the Christian life on our own.Though we like to think we are self-sufficient, God never intended for us to live the Christian life on our own.The Hebrew writer addressed this issue when he wrote, And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works: Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another: and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching (Hebrews 10:24-25).When we sing as a church we are encouraging each other to continue in Christs love and service. We may all come from different backgrounds, but we all believe in one common faith. Our singing, especially the words we sing, emphasizes that fact.Psalm 40:2-3 says, He brought me up also out of an horrible pit, out of the miry clay, and set my feet upon a rock, and established my goings. And he hath put a new song in my mouth, even praise unto our God: many shall live, and shall trust in the Lord.One can see the parallels between Davids life and the life of a Christian: the deliverance from captivity, the fresh purpose in life, and the new song to sing. This new song tells of the joy and fulfillment we find in Christ; it signifies a transformed life. This song is more than just music to sing, but a life to be lived.St. Augustine wrote both a warning and an exhortation to his congregation singing a new song. I urge you, tell me, I am singing. Yes indeed, you are singing, you are singing clearly, I can hear you. But make sure that your life does not contradict your words. Sing with your hearts, your hearts, your lips and your lives. Sing to the Lord a new song. Our singing should be an honest and joyful expression of who we are in Christ.Our singing should be an honest and joyful expression of who we are in Christ.It is important that we realize that singing itself is a means or vehicle for worship. The focus of our singing is ultimately not the singing itself, but the God which it praises. We do not have to be extremely talented to praise God. The most important thing is that we do it!Psalm 150:6 sums it all up, Let every thing that hath breath praise the Lord. Praise ye the Lord. No one is exempt from praising the Lordnot even unbelievers! As Christians we should rejoice in Gods salvation and through our singing point others to the God who glorify. Vine, W. E., Unger M.F., & White, W. (1996) Vines Complete Expository Dictionary of Old and New Testament Words. Nashville, TN: Thomas Nelson. Topical EncyclopediaSinging has been a profound and integral expression of worship throughout biblical history, serving as a means to glorify God, convey theological truths, and unite believers in communal praise. The practice of singing in worship is deeply rooted in Scripture, where it is depicted as both a personal and corporate act of devotion.Old Testament FoundationsThe Old Testament provides numerous examples of singing as a form of worship. The Psalms, often referred to as the hymnbook of ancient Israel, are replete with songs of praise, lament, thanksgiving, and supplication. King David, a central figure in the establishment of musical worship, appointed Levites to minister before the Ark of the Covenant with singing and musical instruments (1 Chronicles 16:4-6). Psalm 95:1-2 invites believers to "come, let us sing for joy to the LORD! Let us shout to the Rock of our salvation! Let us enter His presence with thanksgiving; let us make a joyful noise to Him, sing, and dance before Him." The Song of Moses (Exodus 15) and the Song of Deborah (Judges 5) are other notable examples where singing is used to celebrate Gods deliverance and mighty acts. These songs not only express gratitude but also serve as a means of teaching and reminding the community of Gods faithfulness and power.New Testament FoundationsThe New Testament continues to emphasize the importance of singing in worship within the early Christian community. Jesus and his disciples sang a hymn after the Last Supper (Matthew 26:30), indicating the continuation of this practice. The Apostle Paul exhorts believers to engage in singing as a spiritual discipline: "Speak to one another with psalms, hymns, and spiritual songs. Sing and make music in your hearts to the Lord" (Ephesians 5:19). Similarly, Colossians 3:16 encourages the faithful to "let the word of Christ richly dwell within you as you teach and admonish one another with all wisdom, and as you sing psalms, hymns, and spiritual songs with gratitude in your hearts to God."The Book of Revelation provides a glimpse into the heavenly worship, where singing is a central element. The redeemed sing a new song before the throne of God, proclaiming His worthiness and glory (Revelation 5:9-10, 14:3).Theological SignificanceSinging in worship is not merely an artistic expression but a theological act that engages the heart, mind, and spirit. It allows believers to internalize and proclaim the truths of Scripture, fostering spiritual growth and edification. Singing unites the congregation, transcending individual differences and creating a shared experience of worship. It is an act of obedience, as Scripture commands believers to sing praises to God (Psalm 47:6-7).Moreover, singing serves as a powerful witness to the world, demonstrating the joy and hope found in Christ. It reflects the transformative work of the Holy Spirit, who inspires and empowers believers to worship in spirit and truth (John 4:24).ConclusionSinging as an expression of worship is a timeless and universal practice that has been cherished by Gods people throughout history. It is a dynamic and multifaceted act that glorifies God, edifies the church, and bears witness to the world. Through singing, believers participate in the divine narrative, celebrating Gods redemptive work and anticipating the ultimate fulfillment of His promises. A singer is a special artist who uses their voice as a musical instrument, creating melody, harmony, and rhythm. Singers have the ability to convey deep emotions, tell stories, and inspire others. Their skill lies not only in their vocal technique, including pitch, range, and control, but also in their capacity to interact with lyrics and connect with an audience on an emotional level.Singers can be found across various musical genres, such as classical, pop, rock, jazz, country, and more. They may perform as solo artists, lead vocalists in bands, or members of choirs and vocal ensembles. Singers often undergo training to develop and refine their vocal abilities, and their performances can range from intimate acoustic sets to grand productions on the stage. Whether conveying powerful narratives through operatic arias, delivering soul-stirring ballads, or energizing crowds with upbeat pop anthems, singers play a vital role in shaping the auditory landscape and creating memorable musical experiences for audiences worldwide. Singers have the ability to inspire, entertain, and make a positive impact on society. They provide entertainment and joy to listeners through their musical performances, and can use their platform to raise awareness for important social and environmental issues.Duties and ResponsibilitiesThe duties and responsibilities of a singer can vary depending on the context in which they perform, but here are some general ones:Practice and Prepare: Singers need to spend significant amounts of time practicing and preparing for their performances, which can involve learning and memorizing lyrics, improving their vocal technique, and rehearsing with other musicians.Perform Live: Singers are often required to perform live on stage, which can involve performing at concerts, festivals, and other events. They need to be able to engage and connect with their audience, communicate emotion through their singing, and deliver a high-quality performance.Record Music: Singers may need to record music in a studio, working with producers, engineers, and other musicians to create high-quality recordings. This can involve multiple takes, adjusting vocal arrangements, and recording overdubs to achieve the desired sound.Promote Their Music: Singers need to promote their music through various channels, such as social media, interviews, and other marketing strategies.They may also work with booking agents, and live promoters to secure gigs and perform live shows.They may also be involved in songwriting and producing original music.Maintain Vocal Health: Singers need to take care of their vocal cords and maintain good vocal health, which can involve practicing proper technique, like warming up before performing, staying hydrated, and avoiding smoking and other harmful habits. They may also need to work with vocal coaches or speech therapists to improve their vocal technique and address any issues that arise.Manage Their Career: Singers need to manage their own career, which can involve negotiating contracts, scheduling performances, and managing finances. They may need to work with lawyers, agents, and other professionals to ensure that they are being fairly compensated and that their interests are protected.Types of SingersThere are various types of singers. Here are some examples:Pop Singers: Pop singers typically sing in a more mainstream, commercially appealing style. They often use catchy melodies, simple harmonies, and electronic or synthesized sounds to create upbeat and danceable songs. Some famous pop singers include Taylor Swift, Justin Bieber, Ariana Grande, and Ed Sheeran.Classical Singers: Classical singers usually have a more trained and refined vocal technique, allowing them to sing in a range of styles and languages. They may perform opera, oratorio, cantata, lieder, and other forms of classical music. Classical singers often perform with orchestras and ensembles, and some famous classical singers include Luciano Pavarotti, Maria Callas, Plácido Domingo, and Renee Fleming.Jazz Singers: Jazz singers are known for their improvisation and ability to scat-sing, using their voice as an instrument. They often sing in a soulful and expressive style, with a focus on rhythm and timing. Some famous jazz singers include Ella Fitzgerald, Billie Holiday, Louis Armstrong, and Nat King Cole.Country Singers: Country singers usually sing songs that tell stories of love, heartbreak, and the struggles of rural life. They often use acoustic instruments such as guitar, banjo, and fiddle to create a more organic and earthy sound. Some famous country singers include Johnny Cash, Dolly Parton, Garth Brooks, and Sheryl Crow.Gospel Singers: Gospel singers typically sing religious songs, often with powerful and emotive lyrics. They may perform in churches, at religious events, or in secular venues. Some famous gospel singers include Mahalia Jackson, Kirk Franklin, Aretha Franklin, and Marvin Sapp.Folk Singers: Folk singers usually sing songs that reflect the culture and traditions of a particular region or community. They may perform songs that have been passed down through generations or create new songs in a traditional style. Folk singers often use simple acoustic instruments such as guitar, banjo, or mandolin to accompany their singing. Some famous folk singers include Bob Dylan, Joan Baez, Pete Seeger, and Woody Guthrie.Rappers: Rappers often use spoken-word style vocals to perform hip-hop music, which features a strong beat and rhythmic delivery. Rappers may use complex wordplay, rhyming, and storytelling to create their lyrics. Some famous rappers include Jay-Z, Eminem, LL Cooly, and Tupac Shakur.Heavy Metal Singers: Heavy metal singers often use a powerful and aggressive vocal style, known as "screaming" or "growling," to perform their music. They may sing about dark or intense themes, such as death, violence, or rebellion. Heavy metal singers may also use theatrical or operatic techniques to create a more dramatic effect. Some famous heavy metal singers include Ozzy Osbourne, Ronnie James Dio, Bruce Dickinson, and James Hetfield. Singers have distinct personalities. They tend to be artistic individuals, which means theyre creative, intuitive, sensitive, articulate, and expressive. They are unstructured, original, nonconforming, and innovative. Some of them are also entertaining, meaning theyre adventurous, ambitious, assertive, extroverted, energetic, enthusiastic, confident, and optimistic. Does this sound like you?
