Ohlamour Studio / Stocks If you landed here, we would like to welcome you to the crew of dry chronic lips. We do not focus on dry lips and flaccids resulting from weather conditions (culpable) or constant lip licking (ops). Instead, we try to find ways to relieve them. A method we strongly encourage? Lip exfoliation. And no, that doesn't mean rubbing your lips with vigor with a toothbrush. We are talking about DIY lip exfoliating and ready-made solutions that not only give temporary results - they are actually effective in tearing each trace of chapping to reveal smooth and kissable lips. If "how to exfoliate lips" is too common in the browser history, we have all the necessary answers to keep your lips dry and scrambled in control. And, we used the certified dermatologist from Ife J Rodney to help us along the way. First of all, learn exactly how to exfoliate your lips for a smoother and healthier pout. In our quest to transform dry lips, it helps to know what is really causing flakiness to begin with. According to Rodney, unlike our face, our lips do not contain oil glandsreleases the sebum that keeps the skin soft and hydrated. "When the environment is cold and dry (think: winter months), the lips are more likely to become cracked. Extremely hot or windy conditions can also trigger chapped lips", he explains, adding that lip licking can also be the source of flakiness. "While saliva temporarily seems to renew renew frequent licking the lip actually makes dryness worse." All this to say, exfoliation comes with some serious lip benefits. A main advantage is that it removes dead skin cells. "Exfoliating the lips reveals the fresh and smooth skin below," Rodney says. "An additional advantage is that lipstick can be applied evenly, and lips immediately seem feathers." It can also temporarily increase blood flow to the lips for the feather-looking lips. Finally, Rodney notes that exfoliation can help improve discoloration and dark spots on the lips. "The discolored superficial cells have detached, and are replaced by a new skin, even toned," he says. Below, Rodney breaks exactly how to exfoliate her lips. Clean and dry lips: Before exfoliating, it is important to make sure your lips are clean and dry. This means removing any trace of lipstick or gloss, and following from dry patting. Gently exfoliate: Use a circular motion to rub your skin on your lips. "Be sure you don't rub, irritate, or break your skin," Rodney says. Moisturize: Follow with a thin layer of balm to form a protective barrier. The simplest way to treat the cracked lips is with a product that will lower the dead skin and reveal the soft layer below. Below, our best choices that get the job done. Kopari Coconut Lip Scrubby $16 Shop Make a tropical holiday with Kopari coconut lip scrub. The ingredient MVP is rich in fatty acids to soothe the skin and hydrate intensely. If you are the type do-it-yourself, opt for this simple recipe of lip scrub that requires items that you probably already have in your pantry. Ingredients:3 teaspoon of white sugar1/2 teaspoon of jojoba oil (or other oil of your choice)1/2 teaspoon honey1/2 a lemon Directions: Pour the sugar in a bowl, followed by the oil of your choice. Then add honey. For the taste, add an extract (we love lemon).All together so that Jojoba oil, honey and lemon are evenly distributed through sugar. Scream your lips in a circular movement for two or three minutesâ € "you can actually lick since it is completely edible. Honey is equally moisturizing and helps accelerate the skin renewal process and can be used instead of oil. While we are all about a good exfoliating exfoliating lip Rodney's exaggerated notes can have his undoing. "The gentle exfoliation can be performed every time as once a week", he explains. "However, overeating the lips can lead to cracks in the skin, which can actually worsen dryness and resizing." And remember that exfoliation is just one step in the skin routine. "Like the rest of your skin, your lips can be burned by exposure to the sun ... Just like you wear sunscreen on your face every day, you should wear a lip balm with SPF 30 every day."
