Business income and expense tracker
The apps recommended in our guide perform well in a given area or business function and are the best for their intended use—although each has its respective drawbacks. Except for Expensify, we chose software that offers more than just the ability to create invoices and photograph or scan receipts. We watched dozens of brand tutorials to see if they did a good job explaining advanced features and spoke with users who use these products every day to understand the pros and cons of the software. Issuing unlimited Expensify cards. Stay organized and make informed financial decisions with these easy-to-use Excel trackers! The best business expense tracker app must be able to track business expenses from incurrence to reimbursement. Another thing I appreciate is that it offers both credit and prepaid cards, which provides more flexibility in managing cash flow. These templates are ideal for anyone who wants to keep accurate financial records and better plan their budget. Standout Features Virtual card: Issue as many virtual cards as you need. However, Fyle falls a tad short in card programs since it doesn't offer prepaid cards, relying instead on integrations with third-party corporate cards. You'll want a solution that fits your budget, so if you're a smaller business or freelancer, you may appreciate the free or lower-cost options. Send receipts via SMS: Use an enrolled card in Fyle for payments, and Fyle will send an SMS asking you to capture the receipt and send it. Tracking expense status based on colors. If most of your spending isn't on Expensify Cards, then you'd have to pay for the full monthly price. This module ensures that your company follows per diem laws in certain countries and match transactions, streamlining the entire reconciliation process. By keeping detailed records of your business expenses, you can make informed decisions and optimize your spending. Every expense tracker app review is based on rigorous reporting by our team of expert writers and editors with extensive knowledge of personal finance products. However, if you're a more established business that requires more potent capabilities, it could be worth your while to choose a tracker that costs a little more.
In my opinion, these omissions won't impact freelancers much since they're unlikely to need that connecting to bank and card feeds for reconciliation requires upgrading the paid tier. And enter your income and expense data. Standout Features Automatic feeds: Sync corporate cards and bank accounts for automatic feeds. However, getting an expense passed on to customers. Download the Income and Expense Tracking Template now to manage your finances effectively and achieve your financial goals. By definition, accounting software tracks expenses—but sometimes, it requires manual entry and doesn't provide reimbursements to employees considering that documentation will be a challenge, having an expense tracker can help employees record their expenses. We reviewed multiple business expense tracker apps. This flexibility ensures that you can track your finances in a way that makes the most sense to you. The tracker facilitates everything and can require the proper documentation to be attached before submitting the expense. When choosing our recommendations, we focused on 10 popular pieces of software that offer free trials so you can test them out before you choose the tier that's best for your company's needs. Fyle provides these two features, so I recommend picking it if those are important to your workflow. Download the Business Expense Tracker now to streamline your financial management and support your business's growth. In my scoring, Fyle stood out in expense tracking because of its flexibility. Approval presets that you can use right out of the box for simple approvals. I find this requirement a bit restrictive, especially for small businesses already tied to existing corporate cards. With this comprehensive template, you can track all daily transactions, ensuring that you have a detailed and up-to-date record of your financial activities. If you have numerous employees submitting expenses constantly, having automated workflow tools that let you set auto-approval rules can save you tons of time. Whether you're looking to cut down on unnecessary spending or simply keep a record of where your money goes, this template is a must-have. There is a need to streamline business processes. The fact that it's free adds even more value to its accounts payable tracking capabilities. Additionally, we provide templates in different formats, such as income and expense

Service providers: With the help of FreshBooks' project accounting module, service providers can track time and expenses for the services they provide. Ideal for both personal and business use, this template allows you to keep detailed records of all financial transactions. If your small business is on a lean budget, tracking and approving expenses can make a difference of tens of thousands of dollars in your annual budget. The software also excels in ease of use. Aside from virtual cards, physical cards are also excels in ease of use. Aside from virtual cards, physical cards are also excels in ease of use. the few providers I've reviewed that offers real-time expenses Tracking Templates are designed to help you stay organized, make informed financial decisions, and achieve your budgeting goals. When it comes to card programs, however, Ramp didn't fare as well. Whether you're looking for a personal expenses template, or monthly expenses template, we have you covered. Workflow rules: Track reimbursable expenses from employees and apply approval workflows to ensure that all reimbursement requests are legitimate or allowable expenses. You can freeze individual cards, adjust spending limits, and manage recurring payments per card. These cards are also controllable, and you can set credit limits to different cards. Hence, your expense tracker must have bank-level security features to protect your data from breaches. Read our Ramp Card review to learn more. Keep in mind that many of these apps charge per user, so what might seem like an affordable plan could add up to much more if you have dozens of users. Payment Method: Specify how the transaction was made (e.g., Bank Transfer, Credit Card). It provides a clear overview of your spending for the month, helping you manage your budget effectively. With automated and integrated tracking features, you can retain your current workforce and let them use these tools to reduce their load. easy to keep track of your earnings. Description: Briefly describe the income source (e.g., Salary, Freelance Project). You can either use simplified approval or make custom approvals. Wave fell short in certain areas of my assessment. I didn't rate Expensify's card program as highly. Download the Daily Expenses Template Weekly Expenses Template
The Weekly Expenses Template is designed to help you track your expenses on a weekly basis. If that's what you're looking for, I suggest going with Fyle. To qualify for the free plan, businesses need to route at least 50% of their expenses through Expensify Cards. It offers approval workflows and serves as a more comprehensive accounting solution.
 Use Cases Local compliance for a global workforce: Rydoo's system can address local rules and regulations in different countries and jurisdictions. You don't have to worry about paying more as your startup grows because Ramp doesn't limit the number of users in the system. Discounts: Enjoy discounts and additional rewards if you use the provider

FreshBooks' expense tracking features scored decently in my evaluation. *Percentages of overall score Every business has different needs in reporting and reimbursing expenses. The digital process and complete documentation will make the submission, approval, and reimbursement process go much faster. Use Cases Real-time expense tracking: You don't need departments or teams to submit expense reports to review expenses. It lets you issue physical cards that work with either Visa or Mastercard. While that may be the case, proper password hygiene and other such practices are still necessary to enhance the security of expense tracker apps. With limits in place, Emburse Spend can automatically spot out-of-policy transactions and alert you of these instances. If you're a small business working with a tight budget, I recommend looking into Zoho Expense as a more affordable expense tracking solution. The apps CNBC Select chose offer a free trial and have a version that costs $10 or under per employee, per month. This template helps you understand your financial situation in short-term increments, making it easier to plan and manage your money effectively. In evaluating this criterion, we considered factors, such as a free trial, monthly and annual billing options, scalability, plan customizability, and price comparison with competitors. Aside from these, bonus features like prepaid card issuance and third-party card integration can enhance overall ease of use. But if prepaid cards are more your style, Emburse might be the better fit since it offers both prepaid card issuance and real-time feeds. You can either find a Source: Categorize the income source (e.g., Job, Freelance, Investments). That said, Rydoo's card program features took a hit in my evaluation. Standout Features Multiple card options: Integrate with third-party corporate card programs for expense tracking, but Rydoo also issues Rydoo Cards that are charged separately. Compliance: Not all expenses can be reimbursed, especially if they are beyond the allowance or outright nonreimbursable. Still, Rydoo compensates by integrating third-party corporate cards, allowing seamless tracking of card transactions. Zoho Expense will handle the expense processing and transmit via an integration link to Zoho Books for recording. FreshBooks' design is straightforward and has no significant learning curve. This software can reduce time wasted on paperwork and most importantly, increase employee satisfaction by not having them just through hoops to get reimbursed. How I Evaluated the Best App for Business Expenses I evaluated our best business expense tracker apps based on the following criteria: Pricing is an important part of your decision. Those that offered a free version fared better in our rankings as did those whose starting price fell within what we considered to be an affordable or moderate price range. Others even offer integrations with ride-hailing and travel apps to record expenses automatically. In addition, your business is going to need expense tracking software that can integrate (or at least not conflict) with your existing accounting software so your team's accountant can easily keep a tax-complaint trail of your business expenses. If cost-efficiency is your top concern, Expensify might be worth considering. For organizations with specific needs, Rydoo even offers custom-priced packages, making it adaptable to various business sizes and requirements. This real-time card feed enables you to track and review expenses as they are incurred. Download the

You can use it for free if at least 50% of your business expenses go through Expensify cards, and it's also more flexible with its registration requirements. Other free software on the market may focus more on personal expense tracking than business expenses. Analyze Your Finances: Use the summary sections to evaluate your financial health. Corporations or LLCs can qualify easily, as having at least $25,000 in any US bank won't be a struggle for them. It would be best if the expense tracker could automatically export expense data to your accounting software to reduce data entry. This app is a good addition to BILL's A/P tracking. By using these Excel templates, you can ensure accurate financial records, better budget planning, and informed financial decisions. Real-time expense tracking: With Rydoo, users don't need to consolidate all expenses in an expense report. The Rydoo Cards are separate from the expense management platform, which could be a drawback for some users. Pricing We considered whether the service offered a free trial, how low its starting price was and the range of costs between its lowest tier and highest tier price. Create multilevel or simple workflows. The main difference between accounting software and business expense trackers is that accounting software is comprehensive, handling all aspects of financial management like invoicing, payroll, and reporting, while expense trackers are specialized, focusing only on recording and categorizing expenses. A streamlined business process flow leads to cost reduction. Not all businesses need an expense tracker, as some small businesses can manage expenses adequately through a basic bookkeeping system. For instance, corporate cards can be given to managers, while prepaid cards can be issued to employees for allowances. Empower yourself with these
