Give each student a copy of the worksheet of two pages. Students begin by reading sentences and ordering them according to whether bold nouns are disputed or unaccountable. After that, students guess the correct answers to multi-choice numerical 'How many' and 'How many' questions. Students then order bold nouns in questions based on whether they are disputed or unaccountable. Subsequently, students complete the rules of use of grammar for use 'How Much''How many'' by surrounding the correct words. Students then go to complete pairs of questions with 'How much...?' or 'How many...?' Add -s or -es to nouns if necessary. Later, students use the pictures and 'How many' or 'How many' to complete the questions. Students then answer questions with real information about themselves. Finally, students ask and answer questions with a partner. This free quantifier worksheet helps students learn and practice how to use a lot, many, a little and with no countable or unaccountable nouns. Give each student a copy of the worksheet. Students begin by selecting nouns in nouns of disputes and unaccountable. Subsequently, students complete questions using 'very' or 'very' quantifiers with nouns from the first exercise. Students then complete answers to questions with 'a little' or 'a couple'. In the last exercise, students write 'many' or 'many' questions and answers using 'a little' or 'a couple' for other countable and unaccountable names. When students are finished, check their questions and answers together as a class. This printable quantifiable worksheet helps students learn grammatical rules associated with a lot, many, some and any. Give each student a copy of the worksheet. Working alone, students complete the 20 sentences on the worksheet with a lot, many, some or any. When students have finished, check the answers with the class asking each student to read a phrase. Subsequently, students look at the phrases onworksheet and think about the grammar rules for the use of the four quantifiers. students then complete a gap filling text, explaining the rules of grammar. later, review the rules with the class. in this quantifying activity, students identify and correct errors in phrases containing quantifiers. give each student a copy of the worksheet. Students read the phrases on the worksheet, some of which contain errors in the oo of quantifiers. If students think that a phrase is right, they put a sign in the first column of the worksheet. If they think a sentence is wrong, they put a cross and correct the error. when students have finished, bet on their answers, depending on how confident they are about their decisions. students bet between 10 and 100 points for each item. when students placed a bet for each sentence, summon the correct answers from the class. if students correctly guessed, they won the amount they bet. If they're wrong, they lose that amount. the student with the highest total number at the end is the winner. Winner.
